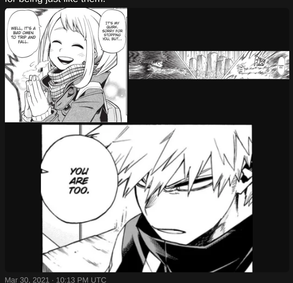
AsarathaHS @AsarathaHS 30 Mar 2021

Uraraka is often criticized for getting her goals, or having it inspired, by Deku. What this criticism ignores is just HOW MANY characters in My Hero Academia are inspired by Deku, or have basis around him, to make some form of jab at the female lead for being just like them.



Mar 30, 2021 · 10:13 PM UTC

15 133 7 653

AsarathaHS @AsarathaHS 30 Mar 2021

Deku has inspired Shoto, during the sports festival. This set in motion the Todoroki subplot. He inspired Endeavor during his confrontation with Touya. Bakugos character would not exist without Midoriya. Numerous other characters have thought "What would Midoriya do?".

1 17 158

AsarathaHS @AsarathaHS 30 Mar 2021

Yet Uraraka is the only one who catches flak for it. Her idea of being the hero who saves other heroes isn't informed only by Deku, however it certainly helps, as he is the one usually in danger from his own Quirk. His circumstances serve to set a precedent for her future acts.

I'LL BE THE ONE TO SAVE YOU!
I'LL BE THE ONE TO SAVE YOU!
IT'S MORE THAN I CAN SAY FOR YOU!
I'M IMPRESSED. I NEVER EXPECT YOU TO SAY THAT!
I'LL BE THE ONE TO SAVE YOU!
YOU WERE NOT ALLOWED TO DIE! YOU'RE THE ONE I'M PROMISING I'LL SAVE!
I'M SORRY, DEKU!
I'M SORRY, DEKU!
I'M SORRY, DEKU!
I'M SORRY, DEKU!
I'M SORRY, DEKU!
BUT I'M ALSO A HERO! I'M ALSO THE ONE WHO'LL SAVE YOU!
I'M SORRY, DEKU!
I'M SORRY, DEKU!
I'M SORRY, DEKU!
I'M SORRY, DEK